POSTMASTERS OF UTAH ORGANIZE FOR THE GOOD OF THE SERVICE

JAS. CLOVE OF PROVO CHOSEN THE FIRST PRESIDENT.

Officials From All Parts of the State Attend the Convention

Delegates Are Welcomed to the Capital by Governor Wells.

Rural Free Delivery One of the Subjects to Receive Special Attention.

Postmasters representing nearly on hundred Utah towns met in the city and county building in this city yesterday and organized the Utah Postmasters' association, in the member ship of which it is hoped ultimately to include every postmaster in the State. After effecting the organization and discussing several questions looking to the improvement of the postal service. the meeting adjourned late vesterday afternoon with the understanding that the first annual convention of the association should be held in Provo in July of this year, the exact date to be fixed by the president.

Officers of the association were elected as follows: President, James Clove, Provo; first vice-president, Thomas Davis, Ogden; second vicent. Nellie M. Thiriot, Park third vice-president, E. R. Nephi; fourth vice-presi-Booth, Nephi; fourth vice-president, Frank Slaughter, Hinkley; secretary-treasurer, S. W. Ross, Lehi; assistant secretary, Mary Griffiths, Smithfield.

In view of the fact that the postmasters of Utah county are pioneers in the movement for the organization of postmasters, that county was cheer-fully given the chief honors connected with the new State association. The Utah County Postmasters' association has been in existence for several years past, its membership numbering 18, and, although its object has been mainly the social one, it has been doing a good work in the betterment of the service. The call for the convention to organize a State association, which will affiliate with the national organization, was made by President Clove and Secretary Ross of the Utah County association and, as a just recognition of their services in this connection they were elected to the most impor-tant two positions in the larger association, while in further recognition of Utah county's part in the good work its capital city was made the meeting place for the first annual convention, No Politics Goes.

The object of the Postmasters' association, as set forth in its constitution and by-laws, is "to aid in the improvement of the postal service of the United States through the mutual interchange of ideas of members of the association and officials of the postoffice depart-ment." The postmasters desire to have it distinctly understood that there is nothing whatever political connected with their organization. In this connection President Clove said:

Republican State convention came so close together seems to have been seized upon in certain quarters as an excuse for attempting to create the impression that there was intended to be some connection between the two meetings, but nothing could be farther from the truth. The matter of the dates of two conventions was merely a coincidence, the date for the Postmaster's convention having been set long before that for the political meeting which follows it was named. Not only is this association not in politics, but its tendency and one of its principal aims is to remove the postoffice from politics to the greatest possible extent. As was well said by Edward Rosewater of the Omaha Bee in an address delivered before a similar convention in Nebraska, 'the organization of the postmas-ters is the beginning of emancipation from politics.

The Morning Session.

At the forenoon session of the Postmasters' convention a temporary organization was effected, including the naming of a committee on organization. constitution and order of business, this committee consisting of Booth of Brigham, Booth of Nephl, Thomas of Scipio, Davis of Ogden and Ross of Lehi. A characteristic address of welcome was delivered by Governor Wells. in which he referred to the wonderful-ly rapid strides that have been made in this country in the handling of mails, the civilizing influences of the modern postal service and the splendid work that is being done by the Utah post shall be most pleased to keep in close touch with your organization in order that I may have the benefit of your suggestions and advice. I look for much good to follow and should be very pleased to meet with you on the occasion of your first "get together." but of course, in view of the distance separating us, and the fact of the session being now near its close, this is nulte out of the neestion.

quite out of the question

Chairman Clove made a brief but telling address in which he cited apt illustrations of the benefits to be de-rived from organization.

Business of the Afternoon.

The afternoon session was called to order shortly after 2 o'clock, when the chairman called for the report of the committee on organization. The nominations for officers, as reported by this committee, included the name of Postmaster Thomas of this city for first vice-president, but he withdrew and recommended that Postmaster Davis of Ogden be elected to the vacancy, which was done. It was explained that was done. It was explained that the roster of officers elected includes at east one representative of every class of postoffice

Rural Free Delivery.

Rural free delivery was the chief opic of discussion at the afternoon session. Postmaster Thomas of this city recounted somewhat of the history of the organization and the growth of the free delivery service in Utah, explained its benefits and told the post asters how they could increase usefulness, mainly by securing exter-sions where needed. When the first rural route was established, with Murray as its headquarters, its patrons did not appear to be quite sure whether they wanted it or not. Now they would not imagine that they could get along without it. There are at present a total of thirty rural routes in the State, and, Mr. Thomas said, there should be from sixty to ninety. The department is quite ready to establish new routes wherever they are needed, but it is necessary that the people who are to be served ask for thm. A sim ple petition asking that free delivery be established on a certain prescribed route, and signed by a majority of the heads of families living on the route, will assults accomplish the will usually accomplish the desired purpose, if forwarded to one of the State's Congressmen. The rule laid down by the department is that a round trip of thirty-five miles by a carrier should supply about 100 families, but the rule is not arbitrarily enforced.

Floods of Mail.

Postmaster Charles H. Roberts of Bingham Canyon submitted his report showing the number of pieces of mail matter handled by the two routes con-nected with his office, which he be-lieves, makes it the banner two-route free delivery office in the United States The report is as follows: January, delivered, 34,050; collected, 7383; total 34,050; February, delivered, 25,241; collected, 7383; total, 32,624; March, delivered, 27,379; collected, 7507, total, 34,-886; grand total, 101,560.

resolution, the introduction of which resulted in considerable discussion, was to the effect that the atten-tion of The Salt Lake Tribune and the Descret News should be called to the fact that their mail editions sent to the postoffices of the State for distribution are not folded in accordance with the requirement of the postoffice regu-lations—that is, that to facilitate distribution the papers should receive an additional fold before sent from the ofces of publication. Chairman Clove objected to the mention of any par-ticular newspapers in the resolution, for the reason that there are other fenders. Others urged, however, that the papers mentioned were the chief orfor the reason that there are other ofenders, because of their large circuations, and the resolution finally wen; hrough in a form which made it both general and explicit.

Another resolution was passed auhorizing the secretary to send tah's Congressional delegation a telegram urging its support of the provision of the postoffice appropriation bill which increases the pay of rural free delivery carriers and the allowance or clerk hire in third and fourth-class

Sixty Miles by Stage.

Speeches on the general work of the association were made by a number of the delegates, showing the livellest in-terest in the organization. There were several women postmasters in the con-vention, one of these, Miss Bertha L. Woodhave of Fort Duchesne, having had to brave the discomforts of a sixty-mile stage ride in order to be present. It was the unanimous verdict that th association had been launched under the most favorable auspices possible, and it is believed that the Julership and attendance, when a more elaborate programme of papers, ad-dresses and discussions will be ar-

All the Commissioners Get Together for the First Time-The Educational Exhibit.

All of the members of the Utah St. Louis Exposition Commission wer present, for the first time, at the meeting of the board yesterday. They were "Wishing you the best of success, and assuring you of my entire willingness to promote the welfare of your organization in all possible ways, I remain, among which were the appointment of with kind regards, etc." employees in the State department at the fair and the confirmation of the appointment of Prof. H. G. Cummings by the State Board of Education, as State Educational Director.

Educational Director.

The employees, chosen from a large number of applications, will be furnished with transportation by Secretary Cannon and are ordered to report to Director-General Whitacker at St. Louis on or before the lath inst. The employees and their salaries are as follows. Thomas Judd of St. George, Agricultural department, 575, a month ricultural department, $75 a month, John Burns, city, man at large, $60 Alice Crissman, city, stenographer, $75, Inez Thomas, Ogden, attendant in State building, $70. Mr. Whitacker has asked for three other employees, but the board refused to appoint until they have received from him a complete list of the coefficient of the coefficie of the applications received.

The commission appropriated $4000 or as much thereof as may be needed, to the credit of the State Board of Education for the collection of the educa-tional exhibit. A plan for the educational exhibit. A plan for the di-tional booth was received from the di-rector-general and submitted to the rector-general and submitted to the Board of Education for approval. The booth is estimated to cost $500 A committee from the Utah Silk Com-nission waited upon the board and endeavored to have a reconsideration deavored to have a reconsideration made of their proposal for a silk ex-hibit. The Board of Commissioners, however, have made other arrange-ments for a silk display and declined to reconsider its former action on the matter.

A letter from Charles M. Reeves of A letter from Charles M. Reeves of the fair management, asking that the commission set aside a day during the world's press week, begining May 16th, for the reception of Utah newspapermen, was received and read. The board directed the secretary to answer that the building would be open at all times to the representatives of the press.

MORAN WILL BUILD SEWERS AND MAINS

Board of Public Works Awards Contracts for City Work to the Salt Lake Man.

P. J. Moran, the local contractor, will receive the city's contracts for sewers and water main extensions to be made this year. The Board of Public Works met yesterday afternoon in the city and county building and opened the bids submitted for these improvements. Moran's estimates were found to be lowest, and the City Council will award the contracts to him. Three other bidders submitted estimates for the work, but Moran won out by $34 on the water mains contract and his bid for the sewer mains was $834 less than that of the next lowest bidder. Moran's bid for the water mains was $24,324, against $24,358 bid by Midgley Brothers. for the sewer improvements, $20,072, against $20,096 bid by L. C. Keisey &

This is the second time bids have been received for these improvements. but owing to the ill-feeling that then existed between former Chy Engineer Kelsey and former Chairman of the Board of Public Works Spencer Clawnone of the blds were accepted. The lowest bids submitted at that time were those of Kennedy & Co. of Chicago. It was alleged that one of the bids had been substituted in transmis-sion from the Engineer's office to that of the Board of Public Works. Counciliman Fernstrom took the occasion for venting some of his wrath upon Fred Kegler, then clerk of the Board of ablic Works, and that individual was equired to appear before the Council however, vindicated himself, but Council, notwithstanding the protest of Chairman Clawson, decided to throw the bids out and to readvertise. The bids of Mr. Moran are still less than those of Kennedy & Co. which were turned down.

FOOD INSPECTOR SAYS UTAH FLOUR IS BEST

However much the ketchups and cat sups used by Salt Lake residents may be adulterated, the people of this city may be assured that the quality of their flour is of the very best. None better, as regards purity, says State Food Inspector Maroni Heiner, can be manufactured.

The food inspector has just received a report from State Chemist Herman Harms covering chemical analyses and microscopical examinations of sixtees different brands of flour purchased in the open markets of the city. All of the samples were found to be free from added mineral matter and alum, as well as foreign flour, such as barley, oats, corn, rye, etc. No accidental impurities, such as weeds, were found pres-ent in any sample; neither did any sample give evidence of mouldiness or

Some son-of-a-prophet has announced to a company of Easterners that the world will come to an end in nigety-nine years. Well, who cares anything about it?

It is assumed that the Standard Oil company reduced the price of gasoline a cent a gallon in order to encourage the sale of automobiles.

Bryan should not lose courage because he has been unable to get that $20,000 from the Bennett estate. The check book of William Randolph Hearst is still open to engagements. Possibly the Nebraskan thinks Hearst will get next to him before the convention and will tighten up on the purse strings before Bryan has a chance to get his entire estate. Hence he feels glum over his legal setback in New England.

Congressman Williams dressed so hurriedly a few evenings ago that he forgot a very necessary part of his apparel. He had donned a dress shirt and a white the and was just throwing an opera coat about his shoulders when Speaker Camon called at the member's apartments.

"How do I seem to look?" asked the gentleman from Illinois of his colleague, the Speaker.

"O, purty good," was the response. "But hadn't you better put on your trousers before you go out?"

The spectacle of a newspaper publisher calling on the courts to compel a man to advertise in his sheet is one of the best jokes of the season. It will now be in order to bring suit against the general public because the people do not subscribe.

Some one has reported that a naturalist has gone into retirement with forty-two Congressman Williams dressed so hurriedly a few evenings ago that he forgot a very necessary part of his apparel. He had donned a dress shirt and a white the varieties of cars, intending to study their habits and their language for several years. Now what do you think of that?

It may be predicted with absolute certainty that if the naturalist keeps the dogs away from them that he will have no trouble proving that were it not for the fact that each dog is pretty sure of killing nine cats in a lifetime, that the "toms" and the "pussies" would take the country in six or eight years.

A Balt Lake newspaper man one time agitated the country by telling that he had discovered a family of roosters that had discovered a family of roosters that were never known to crow. The oldest citizen had never heard of such a thing and the story was very generally discredited. But it was also true.

Now a Western fancier is breeding "crowless" roosters. A bell without a clapper would be as useful, however.

The beautiful iawn surrounding the joint building is now being given a touch of nature that tickles the whole town.

Just why postmasters organize unless it is to keep their competitors from cut-ting prices, is not understood.

I could see that most of the other women recognized her, too.

Cattlemen and Sheepmen Unite for Mutual Protection From Extortion.

Strong Committee Named to Attend the National Convantion in Denver.

Leading Stockmen From All Parts of the State Attend the Local Meeting.

If the sentiments expressed at the joint meeting of the Utah Cattlemen's associa-tion and the Utah Wool-Growers' association, held in this city yesterday, can be taken as an indication, it will not be long before a packing-house is established in this city or in the near vicinity. Rockefeller and the beef trust were denounced in no mild terms, as were also the rail-

It was preed that an organization of the cattlemen and sheepmen be effected to the giving of better rates and more immediate attention to claims for damages that small packing-houses be established to protect the producers from the rapacity of the beef trust. About 100 stockmen and great interest was manifested by all in the meeting, and stirring speeches were made.

President Jesse M. Smith of the WoolGrowers' association touched the keynote of the situation when he said: "The day when cattlemen and sheepmen can pull against each other has passed. The day has passed when they can go it alone,
and all live-stock men have got to unite or they will be crushed to the wall. Owing to the fact that we have been pulling against each other we have not had the legislation we should have had. We are now soing to unite and fight the common enemy. It is believed that the situation wend be relieved by the establishment of independent packing-houses."

Big Packing-House Profits

Big Packing-House Profits. Big Packing-House Profits.

President John H. White of the Cattlemen's association followed up the idea and said that the establishment of a local packing-house would not only save the freight rates and damages incurred in shipping stock to the large houses on the Missouri river, but would likewise save the return freight charges on the finished products, as well as the high profits of the combine. One of the cattlemen present stated that he had worked in both the State, but that he had worked in both the Swift and the Armour packing-houses and could say that their profits were something enermous.

How Trusts Work

How Trusts Work. President White was clapped to the echo when he told of how it was possible for the packing-houses and trust to put the price of stock down west of Chicago and at the same time raise the price of the finished products in New York and the East. "Yes," he said, and his voice trembled with cloquence, "they rob us thus and send us to the wall and imagine thus and send us to the wall and imagine.

trembled with eloquence. 'They rob us thus and send us to the wall and imagine the wrong is righed by giving us back a million dollars in the way of a free public library. But we will not have it that way, we do not want to see our children reading books that have been purchased with money stolen from us. We can't de it—we shall not do it. We will buy their books ourselves.

'That a meat trust exists cannot be defined, regardless of the denials of the packers that any combination exists by which the prices of live stock on the hoof are being controlled and increased or decreased at will regardless of the law of supply and demand.

'Will the packers explain why the consumers are paying just as high prices for their neats as when prices on the hoof were 2 cents per pound greater than now?

'I contend that a great lentaculated monopoly exists, that its tentacles are forever reaching out, grasping and sourcezing the life blood out of its victims; it has assalled the live-stock industry in all of its branches.

'It moves the prices up and down, to suit its own racpacity, and has no greater regard for the producer than for the consumer.

'A fifth evil can be added to the four which Solumes and sumer. 'A fifth evil can be added to the four which Solomon said could not be satisfied—the meat trust."

Many other members present took part in the discussion and there was a unanimous conviction that the stockmen should organize and that local packing houses should be established. Before the meeting adjourned a motion was passed providing for the representation of these associations at the convention of the Westerland or the Stock association, to be held at Denver, Colo. on May 3rd, and the following were selected: J. H. White and Frank J. Hagenbath, delegates, and Jesse M. Smith and M. K. Parsons, alternates. The meeting adjourned subject to call

MADSON WOULD MAKE

"Every man his own policeman" ts the motto of M. Madson, a laborer, who distinguished himself yesterday afternoon by running down and arresting Fred Miller, a boilermaker. It is one of the few cases in local history that a citizen has made an arrest.

He sprinted up South Temple street, leaving the electric cars far behind him, but Madson was on his trail. He ran into the Salt Lake livery stable, but Madson still pursued him. He dashed out the back door of the stable, but Madson came tumbling after.

It was in the neighborhood of Ford's hotel that the exciting race came to an endfl Miller, completely exhausted, dropped into a walk and Madson collared him. The latter started to the police station with his prison.

Miller denied the theft, but was locked up on the charge of petit larceny. Madson was also taken into custody as a witness.
